Examples: Research, articles and presentation

This document lists examples of interesting ways of communicating IPCC findings and articles and research on IPCC communications.

This list is not comprehensive. Display of this material on our website does not imply IPCC endorsement or approval of the products or the conclusions they contain. None of them has been subjected to an IPCC review.

Examples of interesting ways of communicating IPCC findings

Entire IPCC report in Haiku, Sightine.org These paintings turn climate data into art, by Brian Kahn, Climate Central

Examples of clear communication in the media

Short answers to hard questions about climate change by Justin Gillis, New York Times, 28 November 2016

Global warming: normal weather is a 'thing of the past', claims scientist by Sophie Jamieson, The Telegraph (United Kingdom), 5 January 2016

Climate change in Africa: A guidebook for journalists Edited by Fackson Banda. Part of the UNESCO series on journalism education.

Examples of recent research

This is not a comprehensive list and display of this research on the IPCC website does not imply IPCC endorsement or approval of the products or the conclusions they contain. None of them has been subjected to an IPCC review

- List of IPCC communications research compiled by CICERO Center for International Climate and Environmental Research and The Norwegian Environment Agency
- Local science and media engagement on climate change by Candice Howarth and Richard Black, Nature Climate Change, 21 May 2015
- The IPCC news circuit editorial, Nature Climate Change, 25 March 2015 (This is an editorial and contains links to other articles which are behind a paywall)
- The IPCC in an age of social media by Leo Hickman, Nature Climate Change, 9 February 2015
- No more summaries for wonks By Richard Black, Nature Climate Change, 25 March 2015
- UN climate reports are increasingly unreadable By Jeff Tofellson, Nature, 12 October 2015

Last revised on 16 March 2016